

Correlation with Other Techniques in AMD

OCT retinal studies in patients with AMD can complement information obtained with other conventional examinations, such as angiography, or other more modern techniques such as autofluorescence. We discuss combining these techniques in recent studies.

View PDF